

JENIFER “MABEL” SLATTERY’S UCF PRESIDENT MANIFESTO...

Who am I again? My name’s Jenifer Slattery, though I tend to go by the name Mabel: partly because it’s easier to say (I have a slight stammer and J’s are problematic) but mainly for reasons I’m unsure of! I kind of like it, even if it does make me sound like someone’s mad aunty...

I’m a second year English with Creative Writing student and have loved my time at UCF so far. I’ve lived in the Falmouth area all my life so thought it would be a little weird going to uni here but it was all really welcoming and laid back (like the rest of Cornwall really) so it was easy to fit in. And I made lots of friends at Freshers’ by knowing all the pubs! Another thing about me is that I love conversation and will spend ages chatting away about any subject so definitely come and talk to me if there’s anything you want to say!

What will I do for you?

- Manage the grand old task of getting freshers moved and settled in and interacting with the rest of the student body.
- Work to help connect students more with the local community.
- I am seriously committed to the democratic process and will work tirelessly to uphold this in FXU.
- I am also committed to protecting students’ rights and interests and speaking for you from the lowest to the highest levels, making sure you get the feedback of our progress every step of the way.
- Work my hardest to ensure that government spending cuts do not negatively impact upon the student experience.
- Organise and promote a good variety of events, both in freshers’ week and out, on and off campus. I will also strive to give students more opportunities to take decisions on what events happen.
- Aim to organise more events at Woodlane campus, possibly working towards better opening hours for the Woodlane Bar.
- Encourage the growth of participation in and number of sports and other societies.
- Continue to push for free cash withdrawals at Tremough.
- Have time for every student that comes to me, be it with a problem, a question, a suggestion or even just a vague need for chat and biscuits.
- Be continually open to suggestions and queries.

So why vote for me? I think that Falmouth students are among the best in the world (not that I’m biased or anything!) and so deserve the highest standard of representation – and I am prepared to work as hard as I can to give that to you, as well as a warm welcome to any who need it. With me there are no half measures; I will always do my utmost to make sure you get what you want and need from your university experience, and I intend to have a ridiculous amount of fun doing it!

Hope to see you around soon!
